Anti Monkey Butt Powder

“Say No to Monkey Butt”

- Overview: While the name Anti Monkey Butt Powder (AMBP) causes a few chuckles and a bit of intrigue, many people aren't sure if it's a real product, a gag, or a condition. Monkey Butt is actually a skin irritation in this area – the butt, specifically, but also irritation “below the belt” caused by perspiration. It's no laughing matter, and is a personal health issue that affects all kinds of people -- athletes, cyclists, motor cycle riders, waiters and chefs, race car drivers, truckers and many blue collar workers. AMBP is the only medicated powder available that contains both talcum and calamine powders to effectively soothe skin irritation and absorb sweat. The brand was recently bought by DSE Healthcare, a distributor of niche OTC brands.
- Objectives: To broaden the AMBP audience and increase awareness and trial/purchase through a lifestyle-oriented social media campaign. Embrace the fun nature/humor surrounding the brand, while continuing to communicate the message that this is a real product for a real problem.
- Strategy: Spread the word through social media about AMBP and the affliction, monkey butt:
 - Created a lifestyle-angled Facebook page with geo-targeted outreach to message demographic in 72 key markets (where available at Walmart)
 - Produced two viral videos to engage the original “biker” and “weekend athlete” audience
 - Engaged the RL&A blogger/influencer network to generate product reviews and conversations, focusing on “high risk” activities (i.e. running, triathlons, swimming)

- Results: In just three months, the AMBP campaign resulted in more than 28 million impressions (eCPM about $2.50), videos garnered more than 142,000 views (and still going strong) with a cost-per-view of about $0.07, and an active Facebook page that generated more than 14,000 fans with a click-to-fan ratio of more than 50%. Sales have also been up, with increased distribution in Walmart and Rite Aid, and many bloggers have reviewed the product and shared stories about their need for Anti Monkey Butt Powder.

Hey folks. Have you heard a Powder (AMBP)?

AMBP is a new product, invented for athletes, designed to treat chafing that can result from excess sweat.

Excessive sweat can cause monkey butt. Unlike other products, AMBP contains calamine and talc which gives it a cooling sensation instead of irritation that you might get from other products.

You can get more information on AMBP here.
